Foreword

This guide to the uncataloged Russian Imperial Government serials collection of the Library of Congress was produced jointly by the European Division and the Preservation Microfilming Office (PMO) of the Library of Congress. The collection represented by the Guide, comprising 967 titles in 457,000 pages, has been reproduced in 207 reels of microfilm that may be obtained from the Photoduplication Service, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20540.

The content and organization of the collection are described briefly in what follows. The bibliographic cards prepared by the Preservation Microfilming Office are reproduced in this publication, while the original report, prepared by the compiler, Harold M. Leich, and annotated by PMO, is reproduced in the lead material of the microfilm. It is not repeated here because it contains the same information as the bibliographic cards.

Indexes to the content of the collection and a summary guide to the microfilm reels are appended to assist the reader.

Content of the Collection

The Russian Imperial Government serials collection, containing both governmental and nongovernmental publications of the Russian Czarist period, is part of the Slavic materials that have remained uncataloged in the Library for sixty-five years. In 1979, increasing scholarly interest in the collection led the Library to seek a detailed record of the titles and holdings. Accordingly, the Library engaged Harold M. Leich, Slavic acquisition librarian and Slavic bibliographer at the University of Illinois, Urbana/Champaign, to survey the collection and prepare a report under the direction of the European Division of the Library of Congress. His report, entitled "Prerevolutionary Russian Uncataloged Government and Irregular Serials at the Library of Congress: A Checklist," includes a list of titles with Library of Congress holdings and features corporate body and geographic (place of publication) indexes.

Preservation microfilming of these titles was undertaken not only to preserve items that were too brittle to endure effective use but to provide access to materials that were unique to the Library of Congress. They have proved to be of great interest and value to those scholars, especially in the fields of history and government, who have had occasion to examine them. It must be emphasized that these materials are only a small part of the Library's vast holdings of prerevolutionary Russian government publications, the majority of which are in the classified collections of the Library of Congress. The titles on film are sources that would otherwise remain virtually unknown or for the most part be unavailable to the research community.

The following several pages constitute Professor Leich's introduction (slightly modified) to his report and are reproduced here to elaborate on the nature and scope of this important collection.

Introduction

The bibliographic entries represented in this guide are the result of a survey of a Library of Congress cataloging backlog of prerevolutionary Russian government publications and irregular serials. This collection comprises more than thirty-three hundred volumes of unprocessed Russian serials, few of which are recorded in published sources.<sup>1</sup>

Of the volumes surveyed, almost five hundred were found to be either duplicates of or additions to serial runs already cataloged and classified by the Library; such volumes are not included in the guide. The remaining twenty-eight hundred volumes of uncataloged serials, representing more than nine hundred titles, form the content of the guide. They constitute:

1. Publications of prerevolutionary Russian governmental bodies and units at various levels; the Imperial government itself, its ministries, departments, commissions, and their subordinate units; the local assemblies or zemstva (at both guberniia and uezd levels) and their various statistical, educational, and executive units; and a number of city administrative councils and agencies. Taken as a whole, this part of the collection represents almost half of those titles described in the guide and consists primarily of reports, budgets, and other administrative and statistical materials.

2. Publications of a large number of general and specialized societies, associations, and institutions, many of them dealing with regional and local matters and published in over ninety cities of the Russian Empire. Well represented in the collection are the publications of educational, agricultural, benevolent and charitable, geographic and historical, medical, literary, and artistic societies and associations. Publications of libraries, museums, hospitals, scientific and technical groups, banks and commercial enterprises, and women's groups are also represented. As in the case of the government serials, many of the publications represented are reports, budgets, minutes of meetings, membership lists, and other administrative details that provide valuable source material about the associations themselves and the regions and cities in which they were active. Taking the governmental bodies and the societies and associations together, almost 650 different corporate entities are represented in the collection, with special regional strengths for Siberia and the Ukraine. A glance at the corporate name index to the guide will show the surprising variety and breadth of groups whose publications are represented in this collection.

3. A much smaller group of miscellaneous serials consists of almanacs and calendars, monographic series, literary collections, and other items.

The provenance of most of these volumes is difficult to determine. Many items, particularly those relating to Siberia, are an uncataloged part of the Yudin Collection, acquired by the Library of Congress in 1906.<sup>2</sup> The Yudin bookplate appears in a number of these volumes. Other titles were acquired as gifts or through exchanges and transfers from other federal agency libraries in Washington.

The value of the Library's prerevolutionary serial collection stems from the nature of the materials themselves and from the fact that the vast majority of them are not to be found in any other North American library, even those with substantial Russian holdings. Much of the literature in the collection can be considered primary published source material for the study of late nineteenth- and early twentieth-century Russian government, science, society, and culture. The regional and local focus of much of the collection adds to the research value of the material at a time when historians and other scholars are seeking new sources and exploring areas such as regional and local history, the zemstva, and local institutions.

A search of the published catalogs of individual libraries with strong Russian collections (such as the New York Public Library, Harvard University, and the Hoover Institution on War,

1. Many of the titles, but not holdings, are cited in the Cyrillic Union Catalog and the Slavic Cyrillic Union Catalog.

2. Report of the Librarian of Congress . . . for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, 20-24.

Peace, and Revolution) along with the standard union catalogs (such as the Cyrillic Union Catalog, the Slavic Cyrillic Union Catalog, the Union List of Serials, and Gregory's List of the Serial Publications of Foreign Governments) indicates that most of the material in the Library of Congress's uncataloged collection is not available elsewhere on this continent and is, therefore, a unique resource for the study of prerevolutionary Russia. Even bibliographic information for many of these serials is lacking in the standard Russian and Soviet serials bibliographies, primarily because most of the serials in the Library of Congress's uncataloged collection fall outside the scope of Russian and Soviet periodicals bibliographies.<sup>3</sup> We hope that the guide, in addition to giving specific bibliographic and holdings information about the Library of Congress's collection, will draw wider attention to such serials and lead other libraries to contribute information on similar holdings.

This survey of the Library of Congress's uncataloged prerevolutionary Russian collection and the preparation of the guide were supported by the Library of Congress and by the Slavic and East European Department of the University of Illinois Library at Urbana/Champaign. The compiler would like to express his appreciation and gratitude to the staff of the European Division at the Library of Congress, particularly to David H. Kraus and Robert V. Allen, and to his colleagues at the University of Illinois for their assistance.

3. Lisovskii (Russkaia periodicheskaia pechat' 1703-1900 g.) and Beliaeva et al. (Bibliografiia periodicheskikh izdanii Rossii, 1901-1916) as a rule include only true periodicals, issued more or less regularly at relatively frequent intervals. Thus, annual reports are not included in either. Knizhnaia letopis' registers many of the annual and irregular reports from 1907 on, but the arrangement and indexing of its prerevolutionary issues make it very difficult to use as a bibliography of this type of publication.

Arrangement and Use of the Guide

All volumes represented in this guide were examined de visu by the compiler at the Library of Congress. The guide is arranged alphabetically by romanized titles taken directly from the pieces themselves, with notes linking two or more related entries in cases of title changes or changes in issuing bodies reflected in the title. Indexes provide access to issuing bodies (societies, government bodies and agencies, institutes, schools, and museums, using their names in direct order, as found in the pieces) and place of publication. In the latter index, for the ten cities with a large number of publications, there is a further broad subject breakdown for convenience. In accordance with standard American cataloging practice, titles in the old orthography are romanized directly from the way they appear in the pieces, while geographic names and corporate body headings are romanized as if they were spelled according to the new, post-1918 orthography.

Individual entries for serial titles consist of the following elements:

1. Title proper, i.e., the title (exclusive of subtitle) taken from the item itself. Designations of years or volumes appearing in titles are deleted and replaced with . . . Subtitles are given in the few instances where they are present, e.g.:

Izviestii Irkutskoi gorodskoi dumy
Kievskii kalendar' na . . . god
Trudy Komissii syr'ia

2. Statement of responsibility. If not a part of the title proper and if it appears on the piece, the name of the issuing or sponsoring body or bodies is given following the title proper, e.g.:

Saratovskii istoricheskii sbornik/izd. Saratovskoi uchenoi arkhivnoi komissii
Izvestiia Vremennago komiteta/Gosudarstvennaia Duma

3. City of publication. The abbreviation s.l. is used in a few cases in which no publication data were given in the piece itself or could not be determined from outside bibliographic sources. Publishers' names are included in the imprint after the city when their names appear in the volumes, although, because of the nature of much of the material in the collection, the issuing body can be considered the publisher. Very few of the titles have commercial publishers in the modern sense of the word.

4. Notes. Notes provide links between related titles for serials that change their titles and where a serial has a supplement, or is a supplement to another serial entered separately in the guide. The notes "Continued by . . ." and "Continues . . ." are used when it can be determined (often from the items themselves or from volume or date numbering) that one title directly continues or is continued by another serial for which there is an entry in the Guide. "See also: . . ." is used to link apparently related entries in cases where the exact relationship cannot be determined with certainty.

5. Holdings. The Library of Congress's exact holdings of titles in the uncataloged collection are given, using the designations found in the items themselves along with related chronological information. Many volumes, especially of annual reports, are identified by date only; other volumes bear numbering as well as date designations. Relevant information is given in the holdings statement. Abbreviations are used for common terms:

ch. = chast' (part)
g. = god (year)
kn. = kniga (book)
t. = tom (volume)
vyp. = vypusk (issue, number)

As a rule, consecutive issues or volumes are listed together on a single line:

t. 1-3, 1875-1877

t. 9-10, 1888-1897

Dates in the form 1895/96 indicate a year other than the calendar one, such as often found for academic or fiscal years. Dates in the form 1903-1907 indicate holdings sequence of more than one calendar year (i.e., in this case 1903 through 1907 inclusive, or five volumes).

The entries in the guide are indexed by corporate body name and by city of publication. One exception is that publications of the Imperial government and its departments, ministries, bureaus, commissions, etc., almost exclusively issued in St. Petersburg, are omitted from the entry for that city in the city of publication index. All other entries in the guide, including those of the St. Petersburg guberniia, uezd, and city-level governments, are included.

All entries in the corporate body index use the names of the bodies as found in their publications. "See also" references have been provided in a number of cases from the name of a corporate body to the names of its subordinate bodies which are also represented by publications in the guide.

In the city of publication index, broad subject breakdowns are given for those cities represented by more than twelve publications each. We hope that this arrangement will aid users interested in finding publications in a particular subject issued in the larger cities of the Russian Empire. A brief description of the categories used is given at the beginning of the city index.

THE MICROFILM

Bibliographic Preparation of the Collection

The collection represented in this guide and on film contains only uncataloged, that is, unclassified titles. For a variety of reasons, the materials itemized in Leich's checklist differ somewhat, both in terms of the number of titles and the exact holdings, from what was ultimately filmed. For example, during bibliographic preparation of the collection of microfilming, several additional titles on the list were found to be classified or already available on microfilm. Most of these titles were excluded from the microfilm. Exceptions were titles that were too brittle to be serviceable and certain volumes which corresponded to titles originally classified as though they were monographs but which later proved to be serial in nature. In the latter case, the additional Library holdings for the serial title were subsumed within the collection and filmed as well. In a few instances, volumes were not available for filming; in others, supplemental volumes were added to previous holdings prior to filming. Several volumes on the list were deemed valuable enough to be preserved in hard copy and were immediately transferred to such custodial divisions as the Geography and Map Division and the Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

Where a title in Leich's list has not been included on microfilm, a PMO annotation to the entry indicates the corresponding Library of Congress classification number and/or disposition of the work as appropriate.

ORGANIZATION OF THE MICROFILM

The collection is organized according to the 1979 Leich checklist, which comprises the main body of the Introductory Reel of microfilm. Titles are arranged alphabetically and are sequentially numbered from 1 to 967. Each title is considered one "item," regardless of the number of physical or bibliographic volumes it contains.

For each of the 967 titles, PMO has prepared a form card which not only reflects the standard bibliographic data (author, title, place of publications, etc.), but also contains a record of exact Library of Congress holdings for the title.

Although holdings actually filmed occasionally differ from the holdings cited in the Leich list (see Bibliographic Preparation of the Collection), no annotations to holdings have been made in the original bibliography; rather the PMO catalog card filmed with each item is the definitive record for the microfilmed title. At the beginning of every reel of microfilm, the form cards for all the items on that reel are filmed collectively in order to clarify its contents. Each card is also filmed immediately before the material to which it pertains. In cases where the volume of material for a given item (title) comprises five or more reels, a separate PMO "Guide to Contents" for the title has been prepared and filmed immediately before the title. These guides direct the researcher to the precise location of specific parts of a lengthy item and provide an outline of relevant bibliographic divisions with specific reel locations.

After microfilming, illustrated material of various kinds such as prints, photographs, maps, and plates were extracted and preserved separately in the respective custodial divisions or in the Microform Reading Room. Where applicable, the PMO form cards were stamped to indicate the disposition of this illustrated material.

The next portion of the reel contains the original 1979 checklist, reproduced in its entirety. It is annotated where necessary, in italic script, to indicate items deleted from the filmed collection. This checklist is preceded by Leich's detailed commentary, "Arrangement and Use of the Catalog," and includes the corporate-body and place-of-publication indexes.

Once item numbers of interest have been identified, the reader may consult the Summary Guide to Reels, which concludes this reel, in order to identify the reel(s) where the item(s) in question are located. Used in conjunction with one another, these finding aids enable the reader to identify and locate specific material.
